THIRTEENTH YEAR

NOTED SINGER COMING WITH SCHUBERTS

Miss Leeta Corder Takes Leading Role at the Tabernacle Tomorrow Night

Miss Leeta Corder who will sing here Friday night is rapidly reaching the front rank of American singers, having just finished a very successful Canadian tour with the Schubert Symphony club of Chicago. Miss Corder is a pupil of Madame Smythe of London, who was a favorite pupil of Bartoli, uncle of Adeline Patti, and who in a great measure was responsible for that diva's great success. She has also coached in operatic roles with Herman De Vries, of the Opera Comique, Paris, Covent Garden, London, and the Metropolitan Opera of New York City who at present is considered to be the finest vocal instructor and operatic coach in Chicago, having coached such artists as Schuman-Helink, Mary Garden, Bessie Wynn, Geraldine Farrar, etc.

Miss Corder has a voice of great purity and strength, combined with sweetness, perfect breath control, and a phenomenal range, singing from F below middle C to F above high C with greatest ease. She uses it all in the especially arranged and interpolated cadenza in the aria, Una Voce Poco Fa, Adeline Patti's greatest solo from the Barber of Seville.

Music lovers of Cache Valley will be glad of the opportunity of hearing her on Friday evening and Saturday morning at the Logan Tabernacle.

Seats on sale at Murdock's, Bluebird and W. F. Jensen's. Prices 50 cents. Make your reservations early. Reduced railroad rates.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER FROM NEWTON TOWN

Town Board is Discussing Problem of Securing Water for Citizens

Newton, Jan. 11.—The basketball spirit is rising these days, when a great number of the young men are at home with little to do. Every afternoon finds a large delegation out at practice where they are put through some very strenuous exercise. Saturday night a picked team journeyed to Fielding where they met the crack team of that place, the result of which was a score of 32 to 34 in favor of the Fielding basketballers. From the score it would seem that the game was a good one and that the teams were quite evenly matched. At the close of the first half the score stood 14-19 in favor of the home lads. During the latter part of the last half it seemed that the boys lost their stride for a short time with the result as above stated. The Fielding aggregation has promised a return game in the near future. We expect to see the score reversed at that time. The home team stayed over to the dance given following the game where they were made perfectly at home by the genial and whole-hearted Fielding boys. They are a group of real clean sports and deserve to be praised for the excellent manner in which they acquitted themselves on Friday night.

All aboard for some more good, lively games while the season lasts. The town board which recently took oath of office have been in session during the past week. The question of waterworks and water supply was the subject for discussion. It was ruled to investigate the condition of the pipe line above the catch basin to find out if possible if all the water from the spring above was coming through. In carrying out such ruling, the board has had a part of the pipe line uncovered and were surprised to find it literally filled with tiny roots which had entirely closed the line to the passage of the water. On removing this obstruction in the six inch pipe line the water which had been reservoir-

U. OF U. DRAMATIC CLUB

Eliza Packard and John Cotter in University of Utah production of "Her Husband's Wife"

Saturday night the University of Utah Dramatic Club is to appear at Nibley Hall in A. E. Thomas, delightful comedy, "Her Husband's Wife." Henry Miller scored an extraordinary success in the same play a few seasons ago and with the University's announcement the Club's patrons have every reason to expect an evening's entertainment in this year's performance that will be unusually good. The play itself is as clever a bit of comedy as has been seen on the American stage for a number of years. It abounds in a multitude of humorous situations and clever repartee all of which affords the young actors ample opportunity to show themselves at best advantage. The performance here in Logan should show the Club at its best. It having had the experience back of it of an extensive tour through the southern part of the state three successful engagements at the Salt Lake Theater besides engagements in Brigham and Preston before coming here on its northern tour.

The story of the play is that of a foolish young wife who laboring under the apprehension that she is going to die young attempts to choose a wife for her husband to take her place when she is gone. Her congenial old uncle who has been her confident since childhood sees the folly of his niece's proposal and sets out to have her see it herself. His plan is not to persuade her from her own course but is that by letting her follow it she will see her mistake, profit by it and in doing so, afford him his practical joke of which he is so fond. The final outcome is as he anticipated. His niece sees her mistake, accepts her lesson and everyone is happy.

Mr. John Cotter in the roll of the understudy is admirably adapted for the part and is just as good in his interpretation. Miss Orpha Kingsbury, daughter of president John T. Kingsbury, in the part of Irene Randolph, the misguided wife, is also admirably well adapted for the part. Her natural ease and grace, and modest personality aids her materially in winning her audiences. She has had considerable experience in dramatic work at the University and can easily be classed with its products who justly take their place among professional actors. Miss Daisy Rolapp in the part of Emily Ledew, whom the wife chooses to be her successor, has a roll of great possibilities and one in which much is expected of her. The other members of the cast are Miss Eliza Packard as Baroness von Hoffman; Miss Clara Kimball as Nora the maid; Miss Maurine Prouse as Mrs. Higgins; Angus Boyer as Stewart Randolph; H. Rurgerie as Richard Belden; and Don Wood as Mathews, Richards horse trainer.

SOMETHING WE SHOULD NOT LET GO BY UNHEARD

The Sioux City Journal has high praise for the Grinnell College Glee Club which is scheduled for Logan tomorrow afternoon at the Logan Tabernacle at 3:30 o'clock. What this press comment contains:

It was the Songs of the Southland, the second part of the program of the Grinnell College Glee Club in their concert last night at the First Congregational Church, which gripped the large audience most of all. The lights were turned low the young men sat at leisure on the platform and sang the old plantation songs, beginning with Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginia, and ending with, My Old Kentucky Home. These numbers were encored again and again.

The program was not lacking, however in the classical type of music. The Serenade, in the first part and The Monks' War Song, in the third part of the program, were of this nature and were well received. Mr. Sprague's solo, Love Laid Its Sleepless Head, and Mr. White's violin solo, Minuet, by Beethoven, were excellent and were heartily encored. If any adverse criticism were to be offered, it would be that there was not as much of the frolicking type of music naturally expected from a college glee club. Of this particular type was the Laughing Song, used as an encore in the first part of the program and Mr. Zeigler's musical monologue in the third part. The Alumni Song by W. B. Otis was the concluding number. Respect for the resident alumni was shown by inviting them to come forward and join in the song.

This is the third or fourth concert the club has given in Sioux City in recent years. They always have and always will receive a hearty welcome and a good audience here.
